Council extends building permit limit two weeks

Upland City Council Monday night extended an emergency limitation on building permits an additional two weeks amid increasing indications that developers want the sewer problem settled so they know what to expect in carrying out planned development.

The Upland limitation on building permits requires that Chino Basin Municipal Water District guarantee sewer capacity before building permits are issued for new

The limitation virtually halts building since CBMWD is not expected to issue letter guaranteeing sewer capacity until local agencies have worked out a plan allotting amounts of development throughout West End areas served by Regional Plant 1.

In extending the building permit limitation, the council decided to exempt industrial and commercial development as well as residential construction involving a single lot.

Council members noted the twoweek limitation would allow time for Upland, Ontario, Montclair and the county to work out fair development allocations - considered necessary to avoid a state imposed building moratorium.

The allocation system would ensure that each city and the tricommunity area receive a share of the small amount of building to be allowed until sewage treatment facilities can be expanded.

Upland's emergency extension included a condition which allows the city to back out of requiring sewage guarantees if other West End cities and the county refuse to follow a similar policy.

Although Montclair and Ontario have indicated agreement with the provision, the county has continued to issue building permits.

Supervisors were expected to hold a special hearing Wednesday to consider halting issuance of building permits. Results of that meeting were not available at press time.

Although council members seemed hopeful that extending the building permit limitation would provide enough time for agreement on a long-term solution, local developers indicated the continuous delays are causing problems. Doug Hone, representing Mark III

Homes, said, "This thing is starting to hurt. Mark III Homes is sitting stuck in the mud with money up front. You're going to cause us to have midnight meetings all over the place if something doesn't start to happen.

A representative of Lesney Development Corp. told the council developers are having difficulty planning because of the uncertainty about the future.

The council "should consider the substantial hardship imposed on developers" because of the building permit limitations, he added.

Dallas Ritchins, representing the West End RIGHTS organization, urged the council to act independently and opposed the council method of conditioning its limitation on the action of other

He said the sewage "emergency" either is an emergency or it isn't regardless of actions of other

Mayor George Gibson defended the council's action, commenting, 'We have to work together. It's useless if Upland goes alone," and "Upland would be left without any building if the others go ahead. We want our share.

Councilwoman Ina Petokas said the West End cities may have to take some action "to make the county take notice" because the county has caused the sewage problem but isn't taking action to alleviate the situation.

Councilman Hal Bailin noted that development allocations will provide only a temporary solution. Some permanent relief" will have to be provided in the form of expansion of sewer capacity, he said and noted that "some heavy taxes" will be required to "take care of this on a long-term basis.

Councilwoman Petokas disagreed with Bailin's view and commented, We, as taxpayers, have a right to say whether we want to be taxed more" to provide facilities for increasing numbers of new residents.

Animal control officer Braden wonders

Do pet owners really love their animals?

By Lynne Locke Upland animal control officer

O.W. Braden wonders whether pet owners really love their animals.

"I hear every kind of story there is to hear, every kind of excuse. But if somebody cared they'd be looking for their dog," he said noting that most dogs picked up by animal control officers have to be humanely destroyed when they are not claimed by owners.

Some 50-60 dogs are killed each month, a statistic that takes on special significance during "Be Kind to Animals" Week, May 1-7.

Braden commented animal control officers have a bad image: "We're the killers who hate

'We don't. We take better care of the dogs than their owners do," he said noting the animals receive food, water and shelter and are off the street safe from injury

People who care for their dogs have the animal licensed, keep up with all shots, and keep the dog at home, Braden said noting that obedience training is absolutely necessary for every dog - big or small, an indoor dog or an outdoor

The Upland shelter, which is a holding facility for stray dogs rather than a full-fledged humane society adoptive shelter, houses hundreds of dogs a month from pure-bred St. Bernards to mutts.

Most of the dogs who are picked up as strays have no identification although they may have licenses at home in some drawer, Braden said.

Dogs with licenses are returned home immediately if possible, but unidentified animals are taken to the Upland shelter where they are kept for a minimum of three days. Dogs not claimed by an owner are destroyed if they are ill or injured, or put up for adoption if they are healthy, "adoptable" dogs. Braden said there is no way to predict which dogs will be claimed by owners. Sometimes purebred, well cared for dogs are not claimed, but "the ugliest little nothing is," he

The shelter recently held a "good looking" Great Dane for two weeks, but no one wanted the dog so it was finally killed, Braden said noting that animals kept more than two weeks run a heavy risk of developing kennel couth or distemper.

Among the large number of strays picked up each week are several Irish setters Braden called "big, free, life-loving dogs who just love

"Once Irish setters know they can run, there's no holding them back," he said noting the importance of obedience training.

Dogs which are allowed to run freely become a public nuisance and a danger to themselves and other dogs. Dogs running loose are likely to be injured in a car accident, and those without distemper shots can be "a walking plague" spreading distemper among all the dogs in the neighborhood, Braden said.

The problem of stray dogs is especially great in newly developed areas of the city where homeowners don't yet have walls or fences, he

In those areas dogs are often just tied in the backyard without adequate shelter, Braden said and added that animals need shelter from both sun and cold or rain and need to have water available.

Cats, like dogs, should not be allowed to run loose, he said noting that many people like cats because they're "free roving and easy to take care of." But cats live a healthier, happier life if they are kept inside as house pets. Braden, who has two house cats himself, noted that inside cats live longer since they are not exposed to diseases and don't run the risk of abscesses from fighting.

On the whole people treat their dogs well, spending millions on pet food and veterinary care, he said and added that most mistreatment is negligence rather than deliberate. Some pet owners give a dog food and shelter, but not love. because you own a dog, you're not a good dog owner," Braden commented.

One of the ways people are cruel to animals without intending to be is in "promiscuous breeding" especially letting female animals run loose while they're in heat, he

During the springtime the animal population booms, but most families don't have room for several more puppies or kittens

Those who are not given away to friends often end up at the Chaffey Humane Society where some find new families and many more are destroyed.

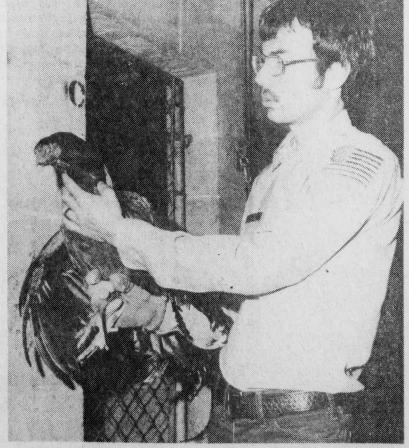

A few litters of puppies and kittens each year are found abandoned in fields, gulleys, or trash cans, left to starve or be killed by an older animal.

Zero population growth in dogs and cats would be "fantastic," Braden said noting that one cat left to litter three times a year can produce "literally thousands" of cats within five years.

In addition to domestic cats and dogs, the animal control officers have to deal with such wild animals as oppossums, raccoons, skunks, weasles and rats as well as snakes and injured owls and hawks.

Officers also receive calls to deal with swarms of bees, but Braden said such calls are referred to bee keepers who have special equipment and know how to handle insects.

ANIMAL WEEK - Upland animal control officer O.W. Braden examines a fighting cock. Although the Upland animal facility occasionally houses such rare animals as the cock, hawks, or raccoons, the majority of the animals are stray dogs, allowed to run loose by owners who don't realize the danger that their dogs will be injured in a car accident or lost. At full strength, the DASC unit will have 80 enlisted personnel and 13 officers assigned to it.

Teaming DASC with the official mission of the base, Forward Air Control, 'expands the capability of the unit," Maj. Roger Skinner said.

Forward Air Control consists of sending in 0-2 Cessna Sky Master planes to locate enemy positions and mark them with spotting rockets, enabling much-faster fighter planes to fly through an area and immediately pick out targets.

Hopf said it would be one or two years before the DASC unit is fully operational and all personnel are trained.

The move to set up a DASC unit at Ontario was made about three months ago when the National Guard Bureau reassigned the National Guard base in Baltimore, Md. to another mission, Col. Hopf said. DASC equipment from that base is now in the process of being shipped to Ontario.

Equipment includes communication modules, electrical test equipment, inflatable buildings, tents, trucks, jeeps and trailers.

Two supervisors seek juvenile court support

By STEVE PAPINCHAK
The West End's two representatives on the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors Thursday asked for public support in their efforts to convince the presiding judge of the county's courts to begin conducting juvenile court trials in the West

Supervisors Robert O. Townsend and Joe Kamansky said conducting juvenile trials in the West End will save significant travel and manpower hours for local law enforcement people, who now must travel to San Bernardino for each juvenile court appearance.

Addressing a general membership meeting Thursday of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, the two supervisors said the possibility of switching juvenile cases to West End courts was discussed during a luncheon meeting Monday with Judge Henry Bush, presiding judge and administrative head of the county's courts.

At that meeting, "first he (Judge Bush) tried to put the blame off to the district attorney — but we knew better than that — then he said it was the failure of the public defender, and we said we'd take care of it, then he changed the subject," said Townsend, chairman of the five-member county board of

"I took it that the judge was opposed to it." Townsend remarked at the chamber gathering of 42 persons

Kamansky, saying he shared Townsend's impression of the meeting with the judge, said he too often saw West End police and sheriff's vehicles traveling the San Bernardino Freeway to make juvenile court appearances in the county seat.

"Everyone is short of police protection, and to see them (police representatives) wasting hours driving back and forth is wrong. Aside from the time wasted, they could be doing something better with their time," Kamansky said. Townsend urged chamber members and the general public to work with local police departments, which already are active in the drive to obtain a juvenile court in the West End, in an effort to convince the county judicial system to expand juvenile court services to the West Valley.

Judge Bush could not be reached for comment on the supervisor's Kamansky said Judge Bush contacted him after Thursday morning's comments were brought to the judge's attention.

"I don't want to be unfair because they (county judicial system representatives) are working on a report that deals with these problems," Kamansky said.

The recently appointed supervisor said he expects that the presiding judge will be able to present a more concrete proposal when that study is completed.

Kamansky noted he and Townsend are seeking both "short and long term" remedies to the lack of juvenile court facilities in the West

Under the short-range plan the earliest possible date for implementation would be in September, after the next fiscal year's budget could be adopted. One possibility under discussion has been having a juvenile court in operation two or three days a week, with the judge and other court related personnel assigned to other types of cases the remainder of the week, Kamansky said.

The long-range plan is to have a full-time juvenile court added when the current Mountain Avenue county complex is converted into a justice center, after the new downtown county civic center is opened, Kamansky said.

Home price inflation

MC PHETRIDGE President,

Ontario-Upland-Chino Board of Realtors There is no question that the rising tide of inflation in recent years has shut many people out of the housing market. Many factors, including . rising construction costs, have been citied. A lesser-known factor must share some of the burden.

Although not generally recognized as causing inflated prices, local state and federal laws that severely restrict community growth also have played an important role in this regard.

Laws such as the Clean Air Act usually are enacted as measures to "protect the environment" or "the quality of life." However, they are now known to have an inflationary impact on prices of both new and existing homes.

These laws were the subject of a panel discussion for the news media at the recent Mid-Winter Meetings of the National Association of Realtors in Anaheim, California. Realtors and staff personnel discussed the effects of the lawn.

Panelists agreed that the broad effect of the laws is to cause demand for housing to outstrip supply. The net result is an inflationary impact on the existing supply of residences.

New home prices go up as well. Government red tape, fees for special permits and delays resulting from processing paperwork cause construction costs to go up. The prices of new homes rise as a result.

Panelist Robert Ferguson, executive vice president of the New Jersey Association of Realtors his state understood the need for restrictions where environmental problems exist. "What we don't understand are those environmentalists who are trying to maintain New Jersey 'as it was.' Nor do we understand restrictions where there are no problems. Panelist Caryl Weiss of

She added that all this is happening in a county that has an 11 per cent unemployment rate and in an area where the average person cannot afford to buy a $50,000 home.

Association Director David D. Roberts, Mobile, Ala., pointed out that the National Association of Realtors is opposed to portions of the Clean Air Act that restrict the construction of shopping centers because they are considered to be indirect sources of pollution.

Although the shopping began applying for permits centers in themselves do in the fall of 1976, he not create pollution, they probably could expect to attract pollution-creating

Can neighbor keep pigeons?

By John Shoemaker Community Relations Coordinator City of Upland

QUESTION: Our neighbor has about 150-200 pigeons on his property. Is this permitted? Does he need a license for this?

ANSWER: You did not make mention what type of bird they were, therefore, I shall make the assumption they are homing pigeons.

Homing pigeons, which are not raised or kept for the market or other commercial purpose, may be kept and liberated for exercise, or racing within not less than 25 feet from any door, window or other opening of any dwelling, except neighboring property where the distance 50 feet, if a permit in writing, authorizing the keeping and liberating for exercise and racing of such homing pigeons is obtained from the city of Upland. Filing fee is $10.

Such permit can be issued by the city subject to and upon compliance by the applicant with the following conditions:

 All feed for homing pigeons must be stored in containers which offer protection against rodents.

— All homing pigeon droppings and food scrap must be removed from the premises at least once a week and disposed of in a sanitary manner.

— The lofts or pigeon houses where homing pigeons ar kept must be soundly constructed, properly maintained and adequately landscaped to blend with and conform to the surrounding area.

 The lofts or pigeon houses must be maintained in a sanitary condition and in compliance with all health regulations of the city of Upland and those promulgated by the California State Racing Pigeon Organization.

The city of Upland, or its duly authorized representative, has the right to inspect each such loft and pigeon house.
Each permit issued pursuant to the provisions of the Upland Municipal Code is valid for one year from the date of issuance and is renewable on the payment to the city of a renewal fee of $7.50 annually.

— No more than 60 pigeons, exclusive of nestlings, can be kept on any one lot or parcel of ground located in the several residential or commercial zones of the city.

QUESTION: Can you tell me what OSHA means and its purpose? A.M.S.

ANSWER: On Dec. 29, 1970, the President signed into law the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, known as OSHA, which became effective April 28, 1971.

The purpose of the act is "to assure so far as possible every working man and woman in the nation safe and healthful working conditions and to preserve our human resources."

Life style and health costs

By Richard Lesher For many years now the federal government has high health care costs are been complaining bitterly of the rapid increase in health - care costs. And for just as many years, the government has itself been a major factor in causing those increases.

Any competent economist could have told us — and many of them did — that massive doses of new money would raise costs faster than quality. And that is exactly what has happened.

In 1965, our national health care expenses were about $40 billion a year. Today, the figure is nearly $140 billion — $638 per person. That's an increase of 250 per cent. Yet, the cost of living has not risen by 250 per cent since then. The population has not increased by 250 per cent. And we are certainly not 250 per cent healthier.

What factor can we find that has increased by at least that much?

The answer, of course, is government spending on health care. Since 1965, public spending has risen by 519 per cent.

If AB 1070 becomes law. the eligibility requirements would be that the homeowner must be 62 years of age or older; must meet the income test criteria of $20,000 per household income, indexed annually to the consumer price index; the applicant's home must be his or her principal place of residence; and the homeowner must have an equity in the property equal to at least 20 per cent of the assessor's last appraised value of the property.

Deferred taxes would become pavable when the property is sold or transferred, or ceases to be the applicant's principal residence, or upon the applicant's decease.

AB 1070 is just one of many property tax relief proposals currently being considered by the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, on which I serve. State Assemblyman Bill McVittie (D-65) has introduced a bill to fund the Automated Traffic System operating in San Bernardino County.

The system processes vehicle code violations through a computer presently operated at the county's expense.

"But it costs about $250,000 a year to operate the system, and the county is left holding the bag for these funds," he noted.

"THE APPLE TREE" — Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden are shown here in the living forms of Mark and Jeanne Shipley, with Duane Thomas as the sinister snake. This action takes place in the current production of "The Apple Tree" playing Friday and Saturday nights at the Gallery Theatre, corner of C street and Lemon Avenue, Ontario. The Adam and Eve skit is one of three acts in a musical comedy featuring singing and dancing in unrelated vignettes. Reservations are available by calling the theater, (714) 982-5357. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Club bookings are open for Thursdays.

'School for Husbands'

Moliere comedy to open

The departments of drama and music of Cal Poly, Pomona are now accepting reservations for their production of Moliere's comedy, "School For Husbands." Performances are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 12, 13, 14, 19, 20, and 21, 8 p.m. in the University Theatre, 3801 W. Temple Ave., Pomona.

In the spirit of Moliere, "School For Husbands" is devoted to entertainment. Ralph C. McCormic, who is directing, says, "The production combines Moliere's sly wit and comic spirit with elaborate costumes and sets. The fetes are typical of those staged for the court of Louis XIV. Songs and instrumental music are based on the spritely 17th Century compositions of Lully, Rameau, and others."

A chamber orchestra, under the direction of Donald Ambroson, recaptures the light-hearted orchestration of the period. Over thirty-five singers, actors, dancers and musicians will perform.

The Cal Poly production is based on the Theatre Guild adaptation by Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langner first performed on Broadway in 1933. The adaptation rediscovers in English the quality which made Moliere unique: the flavor of the comic wisdom in the gaity of the dialog. Moliere, perhaps conscious of his own middle-aged problems with a young and headstrong wife, bases his plot on the problems of an aging Sganarelle who uses locks and bars to guard his young and clever prospective wife from the dangerous delights of Paris. How his ward and her young lover trick the stubborn Sganarelle, is the subject of the fast-paced plot. McCormic stated, "It is a mark of Moliere's genius that he manages to touch the ridiculous and even sinister Sganarelle with the humanity which allows us to feel the pathos of the aging Lothario even while we laugh at him."

Local students included in the cast are David A. Koch and Diana Hamblin, both of Upland, Brian, Gale, Alta Loma and Adrienne Stiff of Chino.

Paul Craik to star in 'Desert Song'

Veteran actor Paul Craik will recreate the role of General Birabeau in the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera Association's production of "The Desert Song."

"The Desert Song" starring Ron Husmann and Linda Michele and with such songs as One Alone, Romance, The Riff Song, and the title song, will be presented for a limited engagement May 6 through 14 at the California Theatre of Performing Arts, 562 W. Fourth, San Bernardino. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. for all evening performances. Due to popular demand a special matinee will be presented 2:15 p.m. on May 14.

Tickets for "The Desert Song" are now on sale and can be purchased at the Civic Light Opera Ticket Office, 2079 N. E St., San Bernardino, telephone 714-882-2545; Harris', San Bernardino, Riverside, Redlands, and Indio; all Mutual Agencies; and Liberty Ticket Agencies.

Although "Aida" has been the opera most frequently performed at the Metropolitan in New York, it is seldom heard outside that city due to the monumental difficulities in production. The opera requires ballet groups, three separate choruses, an augmented orchestra and sets that suggest the splendor of an oriental court.

Tickets are available at local music stores and from Monday through Friday, the box office will be open at the auditorium from 7 to 9 p.m. Further information is available by calling 987-4139 or 987-7559.

Mathew J. Scully is directing the Chamber Singers.

David Saeger and Michelle Strason,

'American Musi-Cal' at Calico spring fest

"The hills are alive with the Sound of Music."

On Saturday evening, May 7, this will be the case once again, as the silver-laden hills surrounding Calico Ghost Town echo the sounds of American music.

The occasion is this year's Calico Spring Festival '77, to be held May 6, 7 and 8, and the event is the "American Musi-Cal." This 2-hour outdoor concert will fill Calico's Silver Bowl with Barbershop Chorus, Ragtime piano, and Bluegrass Music.

The evening's Master of Ceremonies will be Billy Montana of Hesperia. Montana has been involved with country and western music for the past 35 years. He has worked with many of the finest berformers in the "country music" field. He was honorary mayor of Hesperia in 1974, and Victor Valley Citizen of the Year in 1976. In addition, he is also the 1977 Hesperia Days Parade Chairman.

The concert's lead-off performers will be the Riverside Citrus Belters Barbershop Chorus. This year the group is celebrating five years of performing in the Calico Spring Festival. Comprised of 100 members, the Citrus Belters are known throughout the State for their expertise in close barbershop harmony.

Following the Riverside Citrus Belters will be the 12th Street Ragtime Band from Orange County. This group is comprised of Anaheim's Brain McElroy on piano, and Alan Bartky of Fullerton who plays the washboard. 1977 marks the fourth straight year they have played at Calico. The band has appeared at a wide variety of locales throughout Southern California.

Rounding out the evening's performance package will be the 'Pain In The Grass' bluegrass group. The group is headed by Dick Tyner, playing the banjo and singing baritone. The group's fiddle player, 13 year old Stuart Duncan, has had many accomplishments. He is presently the National Junior Scottish Fiddle Champion, and has won other advance fiddle awrds throughout California. He recently became a new member in the Mouseketter Club. Larry Bulaich, playing guitar, is the M.C. and lead singer in the group. Last but not least is Randy Hupp, the bass player for the group. The group has been toegether for the past year and has performed in the Norco Bluegrass Festival and the KPFK International Folk Fair in Hollywood in adsdition to performing regularly at the Penny University in San Bernar-

Calico Ghost Town is located 10 miles northeast of Barstow, just off I-15. For further information about the "American Musi-Cal" or the Calico Spring Festival '77, contact the San Bernardino County Regional Parks Department, 825 E. Third St., San Bernardino, 92415 or call 383-1912.

Babys make L.A. debut

By Mike Del Rey Pop Music Critic

Last Friday evening the Babys, a newly signed act with Chrysalis Records, made their Los Angeles debut at the Whisky.

Displaying a clearly defined progressive rock sound that could be understood without having to force your mind on picking out the words, the Babys put on quite a show.

By themselves the Babys have really never had any record success. Yet, unless you were told you would never have guessed it.

They performed very possible hits "Wilde Man," "If You've Got The Time" and "I Love How You Love Me." "Wilde Man" and "If You've Got The Time" are tunes that have already started picking up air play. John Waite, lead singer who also doubles on bass, seemed to have a sky boy English personality that the girls in the audience described as sexy. Waite's voice is softly spoken. He almost blew his words out in perfect union with back-up vocals Walt Stocker and Mike Corby. Stocker and Corby, who appear doll-like also helped out by playing guitar and keyboards, respectively.

was somewhat surprising. fits nor applies

The chords and rhythm sounded very much like a gigantic church pipe organ something you'd expect in a Sunday Mass. Although it may have been surprising it was different enough to get a good rating.

> Not often does the drummer get any credit or mention, but in Corby's case, drummer Tony Brock surprised us all. With a system consisting of scale drums, gong, and marching bass drum Brock performed a ballet of sorts Energy from trash?

Could be here by 1982

ENERGY FOR TRASH - Artist's concept represents a composite of three separate processes for extracting energy from waste. Each of the three processes studied during nine months of a Southern California Edison Company - coordinated survey would produce a different one of the three end products shown above — oil, gas or electric power.

Recycling trash and garbage to usable energy can help solve Southern California's mountainous waste disposal problems and fight the fuel crisis - but it would be costly, a recent report indicates.

"Waste - to - fuel conversion systems could be in operation by 1982-83, if there are favorable decisions and timely construction,' said Bob Scheffler, project manager in Southern California Edison Company's research and development department.

To find better ways to recover vital energy from solid waste, SCE coordinated a nine - month, $130,000 study project with the sanitation districts of Los Angeles County, Santa Barbara County, the Ventura Regional County Sanitation District and the city of Long Beach, entities representing more than seven million people.

'Project results will enable county and city officials to make better decisions on whether an energy recovery system is feasible in their local areas," Scheffler stated.

Millions of tons of solid waste and trash matter, with an estimated potential energy equivalent of nearly 10 million barrels of oil, presently are being abandoned in sanitary landfill facilities each year throughout Southern California, he explained

Bechtel, Incorporated, Hydro and Community Facilities Division, of San Francisco, conducted the hardware - oriented investigation for the participants. The project involved evaluation of marketing, siting, environmental, technical, and economic factors for three leading waste - to - fuel systems.

The three energy conversion processes were selected from more than a dozen potential systems based on their relative stages of development, degrees of commercial availability and scales of success in system demonstrations.

One system gasifies the solid waste by pryolsis (thermal decomposition of material by heating it in an oxygen - deficient environment) and burns the gas on-site to the produce steam or electricity.

A second system produces a liquid fuel (oil) by pyrolysis.

The third system produces a gas with a heating value about one third that of natural gas by pyrolyzing the Primary sites analyzed included a city - owned parcel in Long Beach, county - owned parcel in Santa Barbara, and an Edison - owned site, Mandalay, near Oxnard. In summary, the study indicated

- Although projected revenues were substantial, net system disposal costs were found to range between $13 and $31 per ton in 1982 -83 dollars, depending on the system and site. (The sanitation districts of Los Angeles County estimate these costs to be two to five - times higher than projections for existing sanitary landfill waste disposal methods.

- All three systems appear technologically feasible. One system will begin commercial operation in Europe this year, the second system is about to undergo demonstration near San Diego, and the third system has been in demonstration on the East Coast for more than two years.

- Air emissions are low, but acceptability depends on results of future tests and Air Pollution Control District (APCD) rulings.

Current marketing data indicated that sufficient markets exist to utilize recovered energy and metals produced by the facility and that electric utilities are the most appropriate customer for recovered energy

With favorable and timely decisions, an energy recovery plant could be operating at a capacity of 1,000 tons per day of trash by the 1982-83 time period, at a construction cost projected in the range of $50 million to $70 million.

Results of the study will be used by local agencies, along with their own projections of cost and availability of conventional landfill disposal methods, to determine whether an energy recovery system is feasible and, if so, what system is best for their own local conditions.

Advice from Don Drysdale

Trick pitches are not for little leaguers

'A kid in little league should never throw anything other than fastballs'

Don Drysdale, whose fast ball made "believers" of thousands of hitters during his Hall of Famebound career with the Dodgers, feels that the fast ball is the only pitch which little leaguers and even most high school pitchers should be throwing Now a California Angels broadcaster on radio station KMPC, "Big D" expressed concern that too many youngsters are doing serious, often permanent, damage to their arms or shoulders trying to emulate the various "trick pitches" professional pitchers use.

While discussing the differing characteristics of the curve, slider, screwball, knuckleball, change-up and other pitches, Drysdale stressed again and again that "A kid in little league should never throw anything other than fast balls. Never. Not until he (or she) is at least in high school, and even then he should try and stick to fast balls with maybe, later, a curve.

"If a youngster has good velocity, a good fast ball, it's like a God-given talent. It's like either I can run fast or I can't run fast. You can either throw hard or you can't throw hard, and it will never come to you and no one can ever teach it to you. So young pitchers should start with the fast ball and stay with it. Build up control and be able to throw strikes. The rest can all be taught later.'

When that "later" is also concerns the KMPC sportscaster. 'Those players, as they grow older, should be taught the other pitches by people who can teach them properly," cautions Drysdale. "I've seen young men actually dislocate their shoulders in spring training trying to throw curve balls because they were not taught properly. They'll just watch someone throw a curve or a slider, and then they'll try to throw one and dislocate a shoulder and they're through. The screwball, he warned, is even harder on the arm, and especially on the elbow, than the curve, slider or any other pitch. His advice to players of high school age or younger is, "Never throw a screwball. Never. Never even think about a screwball.

The pitches Curves, sliders and screwballs, or scroogies," are much referred to on baseball broadcasts, and Drysdale admits that perhaps every listener doesn't know the difference between them.

The screwball is, basically, a pitch which, with a right hander on the mound and a right hander at the plate, breaks in toward the batter where, with right hander facing right hander, both the curve and slider will break away from the hitter

The differences between the curve and the slider are far less obvious.

The differences are both in the speed with which it is thrown and in the break," Drysdale explained. "In terms of velocity, the fast ball is your number one pitch, then the slider, then the curve, then the change-up. The screwball and the change-up are just about the same in terms of speed.

"A good slider will break maybe nine inches to a foot. Fourteen inches if you're really breaking it off. But it breaks very sharp, and very fast, and has a slight tilt downward, where a curve ball can't possibly get the velocity the fast ball has, but consequently you'll get more break because of the spin of the ball."

'Because of the wrist movement and the position of the wrist and the arm in throwing the curve it will have less velocity than the slider; but, depending upon who's throwing it, the break can be twice as great, he continued.

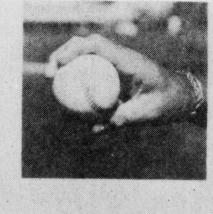

"Nolan Ryan's curve at times will break may two feet, maybe 21/2 feet, the same way that Sandy Kofax's

Contrary to what most people believe, Drysdale said the slider doesn't necessarily break downward more than the curve.

'It all depends on your arm angle, if you're on top of the ball, and if you keep on top and make the spin of the ball where all four seams are rotating downward instead of on an axis of going maybe threequarters of the way, and the way the seams are spinning that dictates the angle of the ball and how it's either going to break down or across or even break flat.

PITCHES - Don Drysdale, California Angels broadcaster on KMPC and Hall of Fame-bound former pitching great, demonstrates grip and release for (top, from left) four - seam fastball, two-seam fastball, change-up; (bottom, from left) curve or slider, screwball, and knuckleball. According to Drysdale, local little leaguers should throw nothing but fastballs because of the dangers of injuries.

The only thing state but, unfortunately, I'm ashamed of is my paycheck. What can we do to improve clerical pay scales'

N.Z., San Francisco Dear N.Z.

Secretarial and clerical work are absolutely essential to process paperwork . in the complicated organizational world we live in. They should be compensated accordingly. Usually a fairly good academic background is required to do this work adequately. Some women do feel they are locked into their positions permanently without opportunity for advancement or more pay Recently the International Women's Year Commission outlined employment principles which would accomplish this. They included the following:

- The secretarial job would be viewed not only as a career but as a means of access to other professional and technical jobs.

Career ladders spelling out positions geared to move into professional levels be established.

- Clerical workers should be periodically evaluated for such promotional opportunities. Training programs for ambitious women should be available - Supervisors should be rated on their attention to this aspect of managerial responsibility - developing talents of women. Clerical people should be considered a prime source for higher positions. Secretarial positions should be viewed as training situations for numerous occupations

You can suggest to your employer that affirmative action programs can be carried through using these guidelines to open up better jobs and improved pay scales to clerical and secretarial employes. Anita Miller

Dear Anita, How about teaching boys how to be fathers when they grow up? I like all this emphasis on teaching girls to have better paying jobs since most will work anyway. But they also learn to be mothers. How about providing boys knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of being a father? After all, childrearing is an art - and a high one S.W., El Cajon Dear S.W.

Certainly teaching a child to become a responsible and considerate adult is one of the most important challenges to humans. And the rewards in the process of child-rearing are hard to equal. But you're right. Girls are prepared by their families and society for the role but little attention has been paid to the need to teach boys parental roles.

The state Social Welfare Board argued in a recent study that both girls and boys need a father figure. The father is far more than a disciplinary figure, he is "an expressive leader; that is, he is important in expressing love and warmth," the board found. Consistent fathering is needed by boys to help them define masculine roles. Both boys and girls show greater dependence on their mothers when no father is present.

The vegetables and flowers grown in many of them are cared for and harvested by home owners, mobile home and apartment dwellers alike.

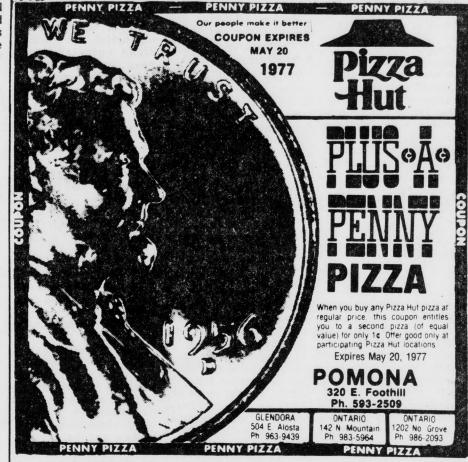

There are several reasons for the move to community garden plots. Often, community gardens are sponsored by groups that provide the how-to of vegetable gardening. What to plant, how much to plant, and when to plant watering techniques, insect control and fertilizing all

If formal instructions are not provided, much can be learned from second and third season "veterans." That in itself is a real

Home owners with yards often join the ranks of community gardeners to expand their vegetable or flower production or to escape the futile effort of raising tomatoes and corn in heavily shaded gardens.

Although all meat contains cholesterol and saturated fat, much can be done to reduce the fat content of meat dishes through proper selection and preparation. This requires knowing the lean retail cuts and knowledge of several different methods of preparation

Learning to select the preferred meats and to cook them by "low-fat" methods may present special challenges at first. It helps to remember that only the lean cuts of meat are allowed, and all visible fat should be trimmed off. Choice or prime grades contain considerably more fat (have more marbling) than do good or commercial grades. Poultry and fish contain
